And He Strikes Like THUNDERCLAW!

THE CATS' LAIR

IS IT A BIRD? IS IT A PLANE? IS IT SNARF PILOTING PACKBAT? Nope – it's none other than the latest invention from the fertile imagination of the Thundercats' resident inventor, Panthro! Cast your minds back to THUNDERCATS 36, and you may remember the fate of the Thundertank, crashed into a tree on the banks of the River of Despair as Panthro swerved to evade a dive-bombing Mutant sky cutter. At last we can reveal the story of how Lion-O and Panthro set out to recover the tank – unaware that the fiendish S-S-Slithe has plans of his own for the Thundercats' family runabout! A fantastic new piece of Thundercats hardware, a host of old enemies and a serious test of Lion-O's leadership await you in Thunderclaw! Another fairly serious incident in the colourful life of the Lord of the Thundercats can be found in the centre pages, as we re-present the cover of issue 29. Greetings to Lucy Blackie of Edinburgh and Hardish Sugden of Leeds, who requested that one! We begin a brand new saga in the lives of Power Pack this issue – quite possibly the closing chapter, if the scheming Queen Maraud of the Snarks has her way! Turn to page 19 for part one of Trapped – where you'll also discover what a JubJub bird is! Superbowl fans should seriously consider tuning in to One Cat And His Cod on page 23, as Bjorn and Dave demonstrate that even a pastime as apparently innocent as watching TV can be filled with appalling dangers. THUNDERCATS 46 – just when you thought it was safe to go back in the living room!

Dear Snarf,

I know you've probably had loads of letters saying this, but I think THUNDERCATS is great. I have some questions:

- 1) What do the Thundercats do in their spare time?
- 2) How did they get home in issue 38? The Bridge of Light was destroyed! I often dress up as Cheetara, but I have a few problems. When I stand on my head I can't come down, and when I run, I run myself into the ground. As if that wasn't bad enough, when I was leaping about the other day, I hit my shin on the stairs. (I'm not doing that again.) Do the Thundercats ever have this problem? Cheetara is my favourite character, so will you tell her I think she's brilliant!

Not too painfully I hope, Sarah! Luckily, Cheetara has yet to suffer any of the complaints you mention - I'd hate to be around to see a shin hit the stairs at 170 mph! As for your questions:

- 1) Wouldja believe eating, sleeping, and playing with large balls of wool?
- 2) The Bridge of Light is regularly refuelled with diamonds by the Enchanted Unicorns! (Take it easy on those stairs, OK?)

Dear Snarf,

I enjoy THUNDERCATS very much, I've got the toys and I like you most of all. There are three questions I'd like to ask:

- 1) Why do the Thundercats always win?
- 2) Why do they always escape?
- 3) Why can't you print more Thundercats stories instead of Power Pack? I think it's a lot of rubbish.

Daniel Goodship
Surrey

1) 'Cause we're the best!

2) 'Cause we're the best!

3) That's a bit strong, Daniel - but never fear! At the end of the latest Power Pack story, we'll be running a brand-new back-up strip, featuring none other than - the Thundercats! Why? Cause we're the best! Snarf! Snarf!

Dear Snarf,

My brother is mad on THUNDERCATS, and gets the comic every week. His nose never comes out of it until he has read it from cover to cover 5 times! I also like THUNDERCATS, and I'm pleased that girls come into it quite often. Ian (my brother) would like to know if there are any THUNDERCATS paperback books out. Could you tell me?

Frances Evans

(a loyal THUNDERCATS follower from the beginning of time!)

P.S. Please could you wish him a happy birthday, as it was not long ago.

Happy birthday, Ian! My sources reveal that, while there probably won't be any THUNDERCATS paperbacks, there will be a hardback story out soon, entitled Lion-O's Quest! Can you wait?
